Coventry Building Society extends £500 incentive for green home improvements

- Green Together Reward application deadline extended by three months to 31 March 2022
- Reward gives borrowers £500 for energy efficient home improvements
- Open to borrowers who apply for a new mortgage or change their existing mortgage or terms

Coventry Building Society, the UK's second largest building society and one of the country's top ten lenders, is extending its Green Together Reward which offers borrowers an incentive of £500 in return for carrying out work designed to improve their property's energy efficiency. Borrowers will now have until 31 March 2022 to apply for their mortgage and 31 March 2023 to submit their claim for the reward.

To qualify for the Green Together Reward, borrowers need to spend a minimum of £2,500 on energy efficient home improvements carried out by a TrustMark Registered Business.

The Green Together Reward is available to homeowners and landlords who apply for a new mortgage or change their existing mortgage or terms.

Kevin Purvey, Director of Mortgages at Coventry Building Society, commented: "Improving the energy efficiency of our homes is one of the most effective ways of reducing our carbon footprint.

"Our Green Together Reward makes it easier for homeowners and landlords to make greener choices and creates an incentive for them to take action sooner rather than later. Making homes more energy efficient can also help to keep running costs down, which is particularly helpful with energy costs set to rise further over the coming year. It's been incredibly popular so far and, as well as extending the deadline for this reward, we're actively considering other ways we can help borrowers to improve their homes' impact on the environment."

Borrowers can find out more about the Green Together Reward and how to apply by visiting the Coventry Building Society website or speaking to their mortgage broker.
